THE LOW DOWN

March 2019

This Low Down brings details of the nominated Point Score shows for 2019, Point Score results from 2018 and the 2019 Earthdog Program. April is going to be particularly busy for Dachshund exhibitors! Other matters to bring to your attention include:-

LOW DOWN ON THE LOW DOWN

The Low Down is compiled by the Editor from relevant material gleaned from Committee Minutes, marked-up catalogues, on-line material such as Dogzonline show results and photos posted on Facebook as well as other information forwarded to the Editor by members. It is then emailed to the Secretary, Nikki McLeod, for verification and last-minute additions or corrections to be made by the Editor. After further email exchanges, Nikki then emails the final draft to Marlene Marinkovic, currently residing in Tasmania, who forwards it to a reliable low-cost printer in Orange who, in turn, dispatches the printed copies back to Marlene. Meanwhile, Nikki emails out the latest edition to members who prefer to receive it that way while Marlene prepares labels for the envelopes to be posted to those members who prefer to receive hard copies. Getting a Low Down out does involve a huge effort and hard copies will arrive in your letter box a week or so later than emailed ones. We do hope that you enjoy this first edition for 2019!

DILUTE COLOUR DACHSHUNDS (BLUE & ISABELLA) – KNOW THE HEALTH RISKS

In the last year there has been a significant increase in the number of dilute coloured dogs being sold in the UK. The majority are being bred by French Bulldog and English Bulldog extreme-colour breeders, many using dogs imported from the U.S.A. or Eastern Europe. As the market for both of these breeds has passed its peak, breeders are now seeing an opportunity to make significant money from 'rare' or 'coloured' Dachshunds as well.

The blue colour is a dilute of the black and tan; Isabella (also known as lilac in other breeds) is the dilute of the chocolate colour. The gene that causes the dilute colours can also cause an issue in some dogs called colour dilution alopecia (CDA), where the hair shaft is thin and weak, meaning it can drop out of the follicle and cause baldness. Because the coat is thinner than normal, the skin can also be more susceptible to infection and sunburn, which in turn may cause cancer.

More information is available on the Dachshund Breed Council (UK) website – www.dachshundbreedcouncil.org.uk

NEW CHAMPIONS

Some of the Dachshunds which have recently attained their championship title are listed. This is always a great achievement – congratulations to all of the owners, handlers and breeders involved!

TIPS FOR YOUR PUPPY'S BACK HEALTH AND SAFETY

Dachshunds have special care needs related to preserving the integrity of their spinal cords. Know how to properly care for your Dachshund's special needs – or your precious little friend could end up paralysed or worse.

Remember, not every Dachshund is doomed to suffer this debilitating and painful condition. But caution is warranted. Here are some steps you can take to care for your dog:-

- Steer clear of any spine-twisting activities such as vigorous tug-of-war games
- Keep your dog slim
- Exercise for fun and preventative measure. Daily walks and plenty of activity are important to keep a Dachshund's muscles strong and stable so they can support the spine

- Avoid long or steep flights of stairs and jumps off high places

Here are some points to keep in mind:-

- Stairs. A big thing to consider when bringing a Dachshund into your home is compensating for stairs. A ramp is a great solution, inside or outside. However, inside baby gates are a cheaper and easier fix. Then, when your Dachshund has to go up stairs, you can pick him up and carry him. And when he is ready to go back down – pick him up and carry him again.
- Ledges, couches, beds. Some Dachshunds are impossible to keep off beds and couches, but jumping can seriously injure their backs. The best bet is to keep them off high places, but if your dog loves to jump, you'll have to take precautions to catch them before they jump down or provide ramps for them.

In other words, just like a human with a weak back, Dachshunds need to exercise properly, eat a healthy diet and avoid certain movements to minimize the possibility of injury. If you follow these responsible Dachshund-owner rules, chances are your Dachshund will never have a problem.

Dachshunds are chondrodystrophic, an inherited condition that results in dwarfism and makes their spine vulnerable to disc rupture. One hard jump off a high bed, a fall from a porch, or even a sudden twisting movement to catch a ball can rupture a disc.

This article was published by a Dachshund Group on Facebook. A large percentage of Dachshunds never have a back issue. These precautions, together with not over exercising your puppy before the growth plates meld and delaying de-sexing your puppy until it is mature will help to ensure that your puppy is amongst this group
